01 · THE LOGO

A column that becomes a letter

The Lexon logo is a wordmark with a custom L: an architectural column made of a mirrored capital, three pillars and a foot that sweeps up toward the e. The letters exon sit on the same baseline in Georgia Regular. The L has the same sharp, flat-cut serif ends, bracketed flares and stroke weight as the letters, and the tip of its foot is level with the tail of the e.

The L in a circle, a square, a rounded square

- The brand name appears only as outlined artwork. Never retype it.
- Headlines: Georgia, where available, else a system serif. Interface and body: Inter.

Before public launch

- Trademark search for “Lexon” in Indonesia (DJKI) and target markets, in software, SaaS and legal-services classes. Similar names already exist in legal tech.
- Typeface licensing. Letters e, x, o, n are unmodified Georgia Regular outlines. Georgia is a commercial typeface; licensing it for the logo is Lexon’s responsibility (no font files are included). Standard-typeface letters are not exclusive to Lexon, so the protectable part of the mark is the custom three-pillar L and its combination with the name.
- Print proof for Seal, Sage and Ink on real paper stock. Pantone and CMYK values are not defined yet.
- Recognition test with real users, including at 16–63 px. The three-pillar gutters are narrow, so check the wordmark at the smallest sizes you plan to use.
